Essay for Causes of worldwide land degradation

The pie chart illustrates the causes of worldwide agricultural land degradation while the table displays the three regions of the world which are affected by the degradation of land.

As per the chart, the three major causes of land degradation were over-grazing, over-cultivation and deforestation. And, Europe is the country where the lands were degraded, largely due to deforestation.

Overgrazing is the main reason for global land degradation which comprises 35%. And, the two other major causes were deforestation which accounted for 30% and over-cultivation was about 28%.

In Europe, the percentage of degraded land was around 23%, and it should be noted that the major cause was deforestation. Over-cultivation was the second significant reason for the degradation of land, which accounted for 7.7 percent. In contrast, North America had 5 percent of land degradation with the result of 3.3 percent of over-cultivation. And, in Oceania, over-grazing had substantially degraded the agricultural land with the percentage of 11.3 in the total of 13%.
